HITLER WAITING TO SEE WHO WINS AID OF RUSSIA

Unconvinced That He Has Failed in Attempt to Keep Russia Neutral

TALKS MADE NECESSARY

Allied Staffs Hitherto Refused This Demand On The Part of Russia

(Note: Germany still remains hopeful of keeping Soviet Russia at least neutral in the new alliances of nations being created in Europe. H. R. Knickerbocker, the noted foreign correspondent of International News Service, discloses in the following exclusive dispatch, Knickerbocker reveals some of the factors that have played a major part in delaying outright Soviet adhesion to the Anglo-French "anti-aggression pact.")

By H. R. Knickerbocker
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
PARIS, Aug. 3.—(INS)—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler is still waiting to see who wins Russia. He is still unconvinced that he has failed in his attempt at least to keep her neutral.

Secret negotiations between Soviet Russia and Germany were originally given chief credit for encouraging Moscow to delay entering the triple alliance. Now these same German-Russian negotiations have finally alarmed the Allies to the extent of consenting to staff talks with the Russians, a step always demanded as an indispensable preliminary to a political agreement.

The allied staffs hitherto refused this demand on the ground it would place vital military information in the hands of a presumptive ally not yet firmly pledged. Now, however, the British and French governments are so impressed by the possibility that German-Russian "commercial negotiations" could lead to a neutrality pact keeping Russia out of war and perhaps placing her resources at the disposal of Germany that they have overruled the staffs' objections.

At the same time, President Roosevelt's denunciation of America's 23-year-old trade treaty with Japan has become a factor to promote conclusion of the Anglo-French-Russian alliance.

One of the chief reasons why influential sections of the British opposed a pact with Russia was because Japan threatened to enter a military alliance with Germany and Italy if the British and French made Russia an ally. Now, however, that President Roosevelt has given Japan a warning that the United States is not indifferent to events in the Far East, the British have been encouraged to press for fewer reservations for the Soviet pact.

This is because British official feeling, privately expressed, is that Japan will not dare to fight on the side of Germany and Italy if Japan knows in advance that the United States is likely to be against her.

Thus the British and French consider President Roosevelt's action an important contribution to their so-called "peace front."

The staff talks in Moscow are not, however, over-estimated in practical importance by European military experts, who recall that since the Soviet regime began, the secrecy surrounding the Red Army has been such that not a single foreign military, air or naval attaché in Moscow has ever been permitted to see anything more of Soviet military affairs than could be observed by an ordinary tourist at the May and November parades in Red Square.

Giant Army Bombers Pass Over Here in Flight

Residents of this area last night stretched their necks and viewed the 15 United States Army giant air bombers as the group flew over here early last evening. It was part of a mass flight commemorating the 30th anniversary of the Army Air Corps.

The bombers, escorted from Philadelphia by a guide plane, flew somewhat to the west and then cut over to the Delaware river above here, en route to Trenton. They were at a height of about 2,000 feet. The squadron landed at Mitchell Field, New York, about seven o'clock. They passed over here at about 6:15.

The bombers, known technically as B-18-A craft, their bright metal hulls gleaming in the sunlight, flew in V formations of threes. On their non-stop anniversary flight yesterday they flew from Mitchell Field to Boston, Syracuse, Albany, Scranton, Philadelphia, Trenton, Newark and to New York, a tour of 865 miles in approximately seven hours.

Simultaneously with their take-off from New York, other squadrons all over the country took off on similar flights as a signal flashed from Washington by President Roosevelt.

Mrs. Elizabeth Moore, Swain street, has returned from a visit with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Moore, Brandywine Lake, Del.

Only 12 Hours Late For Closing Time!

(By "The Stroller")

Two officials of the Bristol Borough Water Department attended the American Water Association convention in Atlantic City, N. J., recently.

That is, they "aimed" for the convention, but "fell short."

When they arrived at the resort city, they found convention hall vacant, and upon inquiry learned the sessions had ended the night previous.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

Struck by an automobile driven by Ernest Jones, 11 South Main street, Quakertown, Ralph C. Stahr, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stahr, Sr., 330 East Broad street, died Tuesday night at 10:45 in Quakertown Community Hospital from a severe head injury.

The accident occurred on East Broad street, near the boy's home, about seven o'clock last Friday night. He sustained a fractured left leg and the head injury. His condition showed little improvement from the time he was admitted to the hospital.

Dr. H. Clayton Moyer, Blooming Glen, Coroner of Bucks county, who issued a certificate, directed that Jones be held under $2,000 bail pending the outcome of his inquest. Officer George Harr, of Quakertown, who arrested Jones, took him before Justice of the Peace Howard E. Shive, where bail was furnished for him by Hartman King, of Quakertown.

Auctioneer Edward Mathias, Ottsville, found bidding on a highboy at the sale of household articles belonging to the estate of Gustavus Ziegler, near Erwinna, on Saturday, to be quite brisk, and it went to the highest bidder for $107.50. Many persons at the sale were interested also in the disposal of a mohair living room suite. This seven-piece set sold for $82.

Prices received for some of the other articles were as follows: Quilts, 50 cents to $4 each; blankets, 50 cents to $2.20 each; rugs, $1.50 to $9 each; clocks, 50 cents to $6.50 each.

Six stands, $3.50 to $6.75; four tables, $2.50, $5.50, $6.25 and $7; chairs, $1.70 to $9 each; beds, 50 cents to $12, and four bureaus, $5.25, $6, $24 and $42.

The fire siren, now located at the Morrisville water works on North Delmor avenue, will be moved within the next two weeks to its new location on the tower in the rear of Capitol View Fire Company on North Pennsylvania avenue.

The contract for the electrical work was awarded by Borough Council to Edward Roberts, Jr., and when the electrical work is completed and ready for hook-up, firemen will move the siren to its new location.

Poor weather conditions and the out-of-way site made it difficult to hear the siren in all parts of the first and third wards at its present location. The more centrally located fire house will enable everyone to hear the siren regardless of weather conditions.

WATCHMAN RETIRES; HAD 44 YEARS OF SERVICE

Gala Celebration Will Honor Giuseppe DiBlassio, 345 Penn St. Tonight

WAS R. R. WORKER

So accustomed has Giuseppe DiBlassio, 345 Penn street, been to leaving each morning for 44 years for his employment with the Pennsylvania Railroad, that the day following his retirement he found it difficult to stay away from the crossing which he watched at Warren street, Trenton, N. J., and he left Bristol at an early hour to visit with his co-workers.

DiBlassio, who had been employed for more than two score years by the railroad, watching crossings both in Bristol and in Trenton, N. J., took up his employment in 1894, two years after his arrival in this country from Italy. For only one year in that period of time was he away from the railroad. His first work was as a trackman here, then he took over the duties as crossing watchman. For over four years he guarded the crossing at Mill street, when the old line of the Pennsylvania operated down Pond street. Then he went to Green Lane crossing for 11 years. For a time he served as watchman when engines were shifted in and out of the railroad yards. His period of service at Warren street crossing, Trenton, covered eight years.

A gala celebration is planned for this evening at the DiBlassio home in honor of Mr. DiBlassio's retirement. Approximately 50 relatives and friends have been invited to participate. Among them will be DiBlassio's wife, his two daughters, four sons and granddaughter.

DiBlassio plans to spend his free time in improving his flower beds and garden. Another desire of his life is about to come true, as he has for some time looked forward to travelling. His plans call for a trip for him and Mrs. DiBlassio within the next few weeks to the San Francisco World's Fair. The one who has given such fine service also is arranging to visit the New York World's Fair, Chicago, Ill., and Washington, D. C.; and other points of interest. He will be 70 years of age this month.

In the long period of service DiBlassio states he has never been reprimanded.

Battles Inter-State Trade Barriers

Harrisburg, Aug. 3.—Pennsylvania opened a battle against inter-state trade barriers today, with appointment of a commission to work for the promotion of cooperation between the States in the matter of unobstructed flow of commerce.

Secretary of Commerce Richard P. Brown named Internal Affairs Secretary William S. Livingston, Jr., chairman of the commission. Senator Franklin S. Edmonds, Montgomery county; Representative Thomas B. Stockham, Bucks; and Representative Kent Kane, McKean, were named members. A second senator will be named later.

"Many States in the Union have set up trade barriers against certain products of other States," Brown said, in making the appointment. "Eighteen States, including Pennsylvania, have not adopted such respective losses."

"General adoption of the trade barriers by the States would bring about a condition such as exists in Europe, and the free transfer of goods between the States would be possible."

"For some years the tendency has prevailed to increase trade barriers between the States. That tendency can be corrected, it is hoped, through co-operation with other States."

$2,500,000 Resurfacing Program

Harrisburg, Aug. 3.—The State Highway Department today announced a $2,500,000 resurfacing program designed to improve more than 150 miles of road in counties throughout the State.

One hundred seven separate projects are listed on the program, of which 61 will be handled by the Highways Department forces under contract.

Approximately 111 miles of road will be resurfaced by private contractors and the remainder by the Highway Department.

ONE-WAY TRAFFIC MEETS WITH FAVOR, DOYLESTOWN

One-Week Tryout Results In Much Praise by Localites and Visitors

NO TRAFFIC JAMS

DOYLESTOWN, Aug. 3.—In contrast to the avalanche of disapproval and protest against making State street in this borough, a section of the much-used Route 202 to New York and New England, a one-way street, a one-week try-out has brought much praise and approval from localites and visitors.

Traffic jams are conspicuous by their absence and the parking space has been doubled. Council was at first criticized for making the change and business men were up in arms, but many now see the great benefit of one-way traffic in a heavily congested area.

Under the new regulation which will operate under a temporary trial ordinance for three months, traffic moves west on State street and east on Oakland avenue.

One local hotel along the State street route reported the biggest business of the year so far this week.

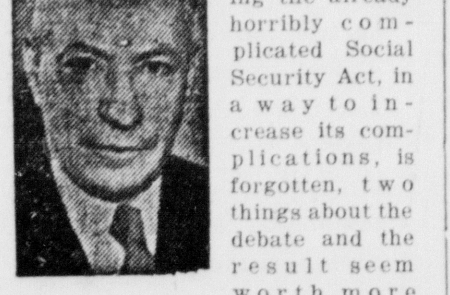

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

"Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc."

Warning From The West

Washington, Aug. 2. BEFORE the action of the Senate in amending the already horribly complicated Social Security Act, in a way to increase its complications, is forgotten, two things about the debate and the result seem worth more consideration than they got at the time.

ONE of these was the speech of Senator Sheridan Downey, of California; the other was the vote favoring his proposal to send the whole business back to the committee with instructions to report a plan "much more generous" toward our "senior citizens," as they are called in the Townsend vocabulary, than the one contained in the Connally amendment, though, if that is not modified in conference, it will mean an additional $80,000,000 a year for old-age pensions.

SENATOR DOWNEY, it will be recalled, rode into the Senate last year on a wave of enthusiasm created by the "thirty-dollars-a-week Thursday" idea and is now an ardent advocate of the Townsend Plan. Naturally, economics is not regarded as Mr. Downey's strong point and his utterance some weeks ago did not establish a reputation for him in that field. Nevertheless, careful reading of the speech in the Congressional Record reveals Mr. Downey as neither a free-spending New Dealer nor, as from the President down the New Dealers are, unperturbed by the swiftly mounting national debt.

GERMANS AND ITALIANS SEEM RESIGNED TO WAR

Traveler From Bristol Tells of Lessening of Travel in Europe

MISS FABIAN'S TRIP

The general attitude of Germans and Italians that should a world conflict occur the United States will not be in it, and the contrasting idea on the part of residents of England that the United States will back them in any such war, was noted by two members of Bristol public schools faculty during a tour of European countries, which they have just completed.

The two, Miss Mildred W. Fabian, 401 Radcliffe street, and Miss Gladys E. Hewitt, Trenton, N. J., were members of a party of nine participating in a tour arranged by Dr. Marian Hay, instructor of Spanish at the University of Florida.

"From our observations and conversations with residents of these countries," said Miss Fabian in discussing the vacation trip today, "the Germans and Italians seem resigned to war, apparently feeling it is inevitable; but in England they fear it. We were told, however, that the English are more at ease in regards to general conditions, now, than they have been for the past year or two."

The two from this vicinity were much surprised at the noticeable lack of drilling and camps for training of the young men in uniform in the two countries under the heel of Mussolini and Hitler. "Tourists evidently are not taken near those sections," was the opinion. "But there are countless uniforms to be seen, as nearly every other person you meet in those two countries is uniformed."

Vividly impressed upon the memory of the two young women is the amount of re-housing in the two countries in question. Where formerly in some slum areas more than one family lived in one room, today there have arisen apartment homes. The Americans learned that as salaries of the residents of those areas increase they are permitted to move to the newer, re-built areas. But there is apparently no choice, as with continued increases in salaries they are informed that other moves shall be made. Thus they are not permitted to live beyond their income, neither are they given opportunity to accumulate money. Funds are therefore kept well in circulation.

"Money in our purses was counted when we crossed the border into Germany, and again counted when we left," said Miss Fabian today. "They want to make certain that no one takes out of the country more than was brought in."

The group sailed from New York on the S. S. "Statendam" on June 22nd, and returned on the "Cameronia" on the 30th of July. France, Switzerland, Italy, Germany, Belgium, Holland, England and Scotland were visited, scenic highlights proving thoroughly enjoyable. Tourist travel in Europe is very light this season, according to the travelers, with few people visiting countries most threatened by war. No Americans were met by the party in Germany, and very few in Italy.

They were much impressed by beautiful Switzerland, enjoying greatly a trip through the Swiss Alps, some sections of which the bus travelled between drifts reaching a height of 12 feet. A boat trip was made on the Lake of the Four Cantons, on which body of water Lucerne is situated. The vivid color of the lakes in Switzerland impressed all, as they likewise did in Italy. The journey through the Alps was made in a postal motor coach, which picked up and delivered mail. Scotland also proved a favorite country with the group. They journeyed through the Trossachs, the country of Loch Lomond, and of the Lady of the Lake. Scotland had just experienced a "heat wave," the residents just recovering from effects of a temperature reading of 80. Darkness did not occur until 11 o'clock, and all enjoyed the long twilight hours. Passing through the Shakespearean country stops were made at Shakespeare's birthplace, and at the Ann Hathaway Cottage. Oxford University was likewise visited.

The cathedrals of Rome, including the largest in the world, St. Peter's, were in the itinerary, also St. Paul's in London, second largest.

NO FUN

The lady who has just circled the globe in no time at all is an example of how effortlessly travel records may be broken in this machine age. Getting around the world in 80 days was once an achievement, involving real physical exertion, constant sight-seeing, noise, confusion and personal contact with horses, elephants, and a dozen types of locomotion now outmoded and little known even in the less civilized portions of the world.

There has been a great and unhappy change since the days of Jules Verne and Phineas Fogg. The whole point of a race around the world used to be in the ingenuity and traveling ability of the racer. Now the emphasis has shifted. Today's record breaker is entirely dependent upon the ingenuity of airline companies and the traveling ability of long-distance airplanes.

Individual effort is now limited to keeping one's baggage at the correct poundage and carrying enough reading matter to while away long hours above the clouds. One may read of horses and elephants, of strange sights and sounds and smells. They will cause no inconvenience. At intervals the traveler descends to earth just long enough to stretch his legs at an airport and draw a few breaths of alien air. That is all.

Today's round-the-world travelers have traded a thousand dangers for one danger. There is the one chance that they may find themselves catapulted into the Atlantic or Pacific Ocean, or into some foreign field. In this event there is nothing they can do about it. Quick thinking, smart action, diplomatic handling of the suggestion are all out of the picture. The personal equation which made Phineas Fogg's adventures so exciting has been removed.

It is pleasant, no doubt, to hold a record even for a short time to emerge from flight as neat and fresh as when the flight began. But it is our private opinion that M. Fogg had more fun.

AFTER FORTY

The frequency with which attention is now being centered upon the necessity of providing employment for men who have passed middle age, if economic stability and social justice are to be maintained in the country, holds the promise of remedial action. In fact, there are evidences that employers are now giving greater consideration to the claims of these men upon employment.

The New York City Sales Executive Club has conducted a survey and reports that eighty per cent of its members prefer for executive and selling employment men more than forty years old. Reasons given are that the older men are better producers, more conscientious, less likely to deceive and more readily and understandingly receptive of criticism.

Stability and seriousness of purpose are invaluable assets in a worker and more than compensate for whatever advantages youth may have in the way of energy and enthusiasm. Men of forty are usually men of experience and responsibility, of judgment and loyalty. Employers are shortsighted indeed who underestimate the value of these qualities.

as black a picture of the Federal financial situation as any Republican or anti-New Deal Democrat has done. "What I see," he said—"and in not longer than two or three years—is an internal breakdown of our economy more terrifying than any possibility of Asiatic or European invasion of our shores. Let the public debt increase a few years longer at the rate it has been doing and we will see the collapse of every bank, building and loan association and insurance company in the country.

No one need suggest to me that we can support our bonds except by issuing printed money and inflation. Then, of course, all savings and property rights would be destroyed, as they were in Russia and Germany.

In addition, Mr. Downey severely indicted the Social Security Act as an unhappy experiment, inadequate, confused and unworkable. Words such as these coming from Senators Glass, Byrd, Tydings, Bailey, Adams or other anti-Administration figures would not be news. They have all spoken in similar vein many times. But coming from Mr. Downey, who ran with the Roosevelt blessing and is supposed to be as far to the Left as, for instance, Senator Glass is to the Right, they seem significant. What they seem to mean is that in the vital matter of the general unsoundness of the Roosevelt fiscal policies and the perils to which the unrestrained spending expose the nation, there is no real difference between the conservative Democrats of the East and the Downeys of the West. Both are appalled at the prospect.

ACTUALLY, the only people who complacently view the frightening financial facts are Mr. Roosevelt himself (who once was more alarmed and alarming over debts and deficits than anyone else) and a group of radical economists who have evolved the strange theory that deficits are healthful and debts make no difference. Even the President's Treasury aides are scared when they sit down and fairly face the situation. Of course, Mr. Downey's remedy differs from that of the conservatives. His cure is the Townsend Plan which, with its two per cent transaction tax, he advocates not only as a "self-liquidating" proposition but as a relief measure.

ROUGHLY, his argument is that if only 10,000,000 of the 13,000,000 of "senior citizens" over 60 were adequately pensioned, enough jobs would be relinquished both in private industry and on WPA to solve the unemployment problem and so cut relief expenses as to enable the Treasury to regain its equilibrium. Of course, there is more to it than that. It is the regulation Townsend stuff which cannot be swallowed by those who still believe in the multiplication table, though if you push that aside it is a moving and plausible argument.

THE Downey proposal was rejected by a 47-to-18 vote. It is interesting to note the names of those who voted with him—Barbour, Bridges, Frazier, Gurney, Johnson (Cal.), Lodge, Lundeen, Nye, O'Mahoney, Reed, Schwartz,

Taft, Thomas, Tobey, Wheeler, White and Wiley. From the floor it was announced that had Senator Vandenberg been present he, too, would have voted aye. Perhaps it is not fair to say these Senators voted in favor of the Townsend plan just because Mr. Downey had made his grand Townsend speech urging his proposal just before the roll call. But it is fair to say that they voted in the belief that the question of "more generous" treatment of our "senior citizens" will be a very live issue in 1940—and also with the knowledge that when Mr. Downey asserted that there were 13,000,000 of them in the country he probably was right.

Stresses Early Treatment
For The Exceptional Child

Delivering an address at the Congress of the International Association for the Education of Exceptional Children, in Geneva, Switzerland, Mrs. Irene S. Seipt, director of the Guild Research Clinic of the Woods School at Langhorne, stressed the need for early treatment for exceptional children when the exceptionality is on the minus side.

"We must be wary of the pronouncement 'He'll outgrow it.' Perhaps he will. It is one of the comforting things about children that they survive and outgrow many of the errors of their parents and teachers," said Mrs. Seipt.

"But, when a child shows a disturbing deviation from his group we should make a thoughtful survey of his situation. We must decide what minimum equipment would bring him, at least to the outer fringe of acceptability."

Mrs. Seipt cited many case histories taken from the records of The Woods Schools and in each instance it was noted that the training for occupation was started early. The child is taught to carry out small tasks, to cultivate good work habits, to realize that no achievement can be accomplished without effort.

"Training for social efficiency, whether in the field of locomotion, communication, self-help, self-direction, occupation or socialization, should be the concern of home and school alike. We can alter the exceptional child's program so that it brings him progressive independence within the limits of his intellectual ability, but it requires imagination to adapt methods and situations for him. Parents sometimes feel that responsibility is being taken from them when the school concerns itself with the child's social maturity. Actually, both parents and school should welcome help from every source for the exceptional child, more than any other, cannot be allowed just to grow up but must be cultivated," Mrs. Seipt concluded.

The Woods Schools was also represented at the congress by its founder and active head, Mrs. Mollie Woods Hare, upon whom Temple University, Philadelphia, recently conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters in recognition of her outstanding achievements in the field of the exceptional child—the sub-normal child, the behavior problem child, the child with a handicap.

ON THE SCREENS

RITZ THEATRE

Louise Massey and The Westerners, who are currently featured in Monogram's "Where the Buffalo Roam," now at the Ritz Theatre, are nationally acknowledged to be the outstanding vocal and instrumental group in the United States.

They come from a ranch in Lincoln County, New Mexico, where Billy the Kid was an outstanding figure in the furious cattle wars that swept the country and where a child's first rifle is a silvered Mexican spur.

Virtue drama comes to the screen in Republic's "Street of Missing Men," previewed yesterday at the Ritz Theatre.

BRISTOL THEATRE

With forty per cent of the American national income spent for food, it will be seen that if only one per cent of this vast amount were set aside each year, it would soon amortize the nation's war debt. Yet many times this sum is mulcted from the people every year through fraudulent scales and short measures, and much more would be were it not for the ceaseless efforts of the Weights and Measures Department of every large city.

This is the background—unique in narratives of the screen—for the story of "Great Guy." Grand National's first picture starring James Cagney, which opened at the Bristol Theatre Wednesday.

LANDRETH NINE KEEPS WINNING; DEFEATS ARDMORE

Al Carey Holds Main Line
Team To Five
Hits

FINAL SCORE IS 12 TO 1

Victory Was An Easy One
For Local "Farmers"
Nine

Al Carey held Ardmore, leaders of the Main Line League, to five hits as the Landreth team hammered out an easy victory over the visitors last night at Landreth Ball Park. The score ended 12 to 1. Two of the visitors' hits came in the opening inning to produce their lone run.

McCauley pitched good ball for Ardmore in the early innings, holding the Farmers to four hits and two runs, but weakened in the closing innings.

Lodge's hit, Broderick's sacrifice and two wild throws by Powell, visiting shortstop, and a muff by Loftus of Griggs' sacrifice fly gave Landreth two tallies and the lead in the second inning.

Hits by Broderick and Dougherty and a two-base hit by Griggs drove two more in in the sixth.

In the seventh two more counted on Rockhill's hit, a base on balls to Liberatore, a fielder's choice, and a single by Lodge.

Six hits in the eighth inning, a base on balls, and an error by Powell, gave the Farmers their final runs.

The fielding of Liberatore, Rossi and Dougherty, and the hitting of Broderick and Griggs was the feature.

The Landreth team will play at Riegelsville, N. J., today at six p. m.

Two Bristol Tennis Aces Defeat Opponents

The two Bristol tennis aces, Herbert Lawrence and Nelson Green, were successful last night when they swept past dangerous opposition in straight sets to qualify for the semi-final round of the city men's doubles tennis tournament at the Cadwallader Park courts in Trenton.

Green and Lawrence played the brand of tennis which promises to bring them another title and they passed what was expected to be a stiff test without difficulty.

The Bristol pair ousted Harry Pfitzinger and Earl Ballard, 6-2, 6-2. Taking command of the match from the net, the defenders were never in trouble.

In tonight's only match defenders Lawrence and Green take the court against Moylan and Waldron in an attempt to gain another final round. Rated off their recent performances, Moylan and Waldron are given an even chance to level the Bristolians.

MORRISVILLE LEGION BOWS TO BETHLEHEM

PERKASIE, Aug. 3.—Morrisville's Willet C. Sanford Post, No. 433, was eliminated from the American Legion State junior baseball tourney here, Tuesday, in the final game of their three-game series with the Harry W. Johnson Post, No. 397, of Bethlehem. The score was 6 to 2.

Bill Wiggins, despite brilliant work in all three games, just could not be counted upon to last the full nine innings. Bill hurled great ball for four, shutting out the hard-hitting Bethlehem outfit, but two in the fifth, three in the sixth and a single run in the eighth spelled defeat.

Morrisville opened strongly, when Kenny Swayne and Dave Seltzer led off with walks in the first frame. Bob Cook sacrificed both men along and the bases were crammed when the hunt went for a hit. Wiggins then came through with a hit to centre, for the only two runs Morrisville was to score all night.

HALL ALUMINUM at DIAMOND
Umpire, Morrell; Scorer, Jund

The tail-end Grundy team was leading the Diamond nine, 7-2, last night on the Cornwells' field, when the game was called at the beginning of the fourth inning, because of darkness.

Two home runs were smacked in the tilt. In the first, Chuck Klein, shortstop for Diamond, hit a four-bagger to right with Thorpey on base. Left DiTanna received a homer on his hard blow to deep center in the third with Wright on base.

Mike DeRisi was doing the pitching for the Diamond team and in the four innings he was found for eight hits. For Grundy's, Jesse Vansant started and in the second was relieved by Charlie Snake who blanked the Diamond team for the next two frames.

SINDORA ANXIOUS TO MEET MANGINI IF HE DOWNS RIVERS

Requested Match With Mangini For A Long Time

ALWAYS DECLINED

Trentonian Claims That An Excuse Was Always Found To Prevent The Match

Sam Sindora, of Trenton, N. J., who meets Joe Rivers, of Philadelphia, Monday night, on the card at St. Ann's open air arena in Bristol, wants to meet Larry Mangini, of Trenton, if he gets by Rivers. Sindora has been asking for this match with Mangini for some time, but claims Mangini is afraid to face the issue and box. Sindora claims that every time the match is broached to Mangini he always finds an excuse to get out from under. Sam is willing to fight Larry on a winner take all basis or on any terms that are satisfactory to Mangini, so confident is he of his ability to win over his arch rival.

Recently Sindora has been going along in great style. He knocked out Joe Pallino twice and beat Fred Nebo. In each match Sindora was the underdog but came through to victory. If he beats Rivers he wants Mangini.

In boxing Rivers, Sindora has his work cut out for him, as Joe knows his way around within the squared circle. Some of the fellows with whom he has tangled include the hard-punching Baby Kid Chocolate, Bucky Jones, and others. He is a rugged youngster who can bang with either hand. He is not one of those fancy dandies but a tough, rugged fighter who is always willing to take a punch to the land one. It looks like a great fight with little to choose between the rivals.

The windup of eight rounds brings together the popular Angelo Tony Maglione, of Trenton, meeting Billy Mims, "the upset kid" from Philly. The semi-windup of six rounds calls for Pat Mangini, of Philadelphia, who made a hit, in his last appearance, with the fans, meeting Dolford Reed, of Trenton. Another six will show that promising youngster of Croydon, Hokey Leighton, tangling with Gene Kirk, of Philadelphia. In addition to the Sindora-Rivers contest there will be two other four-rounders. In one, Freddy Badassi meets Dave Eddy, of Philly, who recently knocked out Jimmy Cool, and two heavyweights will show in the other—Joe Britton, of Doylestown, against John Glover, of Trenton.

Germans and Italians Seem Resigned To War

In Rome they went to the Coliseum, the Catacombs, the Roman Forum, etc.

A Sunday motor trip through 60,000 acres in Holland planted to bulbs, was memorable. At Volendam, the native Dutch costumes interested, with young and old clattering along in their wooden shoes, each fair one dainty in white lace cap and long, full skirt. Parents and children were just returning from church, and the Americans had splendid opportunity to view the unique costumes. The party rode, by bus, on top of the dykes, the thoroughfare at times leading along the base, inside of the sea wall. The varied prices of gasoline in the different countries was noted. In Italy it sells for $1 a gallon; in Germany for 80 cents; and in England, 40 cents, for the same quantity.
